Award for Residential Architecture Houses — Alterations & Additions Tasmania Preston Lane Architects Browne Street

The podium provides a new datum for the rear of the site, grounding the extension and elevating the previously steep back yard to the level of the addition. The result is a viewing platform to the panoramic views of Hobart. The addition neatly sleeves into the existing house by providing a seamless transition from old and new. A shift in the material palette is used as a tool to identify the new works of the existing house. Externally, the connection between the existing cottage and addition is obvious, with a shift in colour, material and a stripped back approach to detailing.

'Designing an extension for my brother, the builder, and his growing family provided the unique opportunity for us to test design ideas but also gain a personal insight into the construction side of projects'. —Daniel Lane, Preston Lane Architects > Page 272
